

The FCC may as well remove the requirement for all Morse Code, what the heck VHF already sounds like the new CB band. You can't listen to VHF without hearing some lid talk and by his words tell he hasn't got a clue what electronics or even how to spell it. The removal of Code requirements has already caused too much turmoil in the amateur ranks. I'm ready to drop my amateur equipment and just play computers at least most folks on the computer can spell the name of their equipment.
